Vitamins

Vitamins fluctuated slightly this week. Domestic procurement and sales were active, while exports were mainly on the sidelines. The VC factory has stopped reporting, currently mainly consuming inventory, and transaction prices have increased; the nicotinic acid/niacinamide factory has continued to stop reporting after signing a small number of orders, prices have bottomed out, and transactions are active; K3 factory delivery is tight, the factory has stopped reporting, and the market Inquiries increased; B2 factory had strong willingness to raise prices, and market attention increased.

Amino Acids

The overall trend of amino acids this week is mainly stable. The price quoted by the lysine hcl has been slightly lowered, the price of lysine sulfate has been stable, users have replenished a small amount of goods, and the market transactions have improved slightly; Threonine: The manufacturer's price quote is stable, purchases and sales are light, and users are not willing to sign orders. The market is expected to remain stable in the short term. However, export prices may rise slightly due to the impact of the US dollar exchange rate.

API

This week, the veterinary drug raw material market remained stable as a whole. Market inquiries for some products were relatively active, and overall attention increased.

Food Additives

The overall food supplement sector showed a stable trend this week, with the prices of sucralose/aspartame/acesulfame potassium falling slightly, and the price of creatine monohydrate remaining stable this week.
