Zhejiang Garden Biopharmaceutical has completed its 6,000-ton VA powder project, while its 5,000-ton B6 project, delayed due to process and automation upgrades, is now under trial production and expected to launch by year-end or June 2026.

On September 8, Adisseo and Muyuan Group signed a comprehensive strategic cooperation framework. The partnership aims to leverage Adisseo's cutting-edge expertise in feed additives and Muyuan's large-scale swine farming capabilities to jointly enhance animal nutrition, herd health, and sustainable production. This collaboration is also aligned with China's "Big Food Concept" strategy, supporting the swine industry's transition toward higher efficiency, animal welfare, and environmental sustainability. By combining technology, innovation, and resources across the value chain, both parties seek to establish a new benchmark for integrated nutrition and farming models, while driving long-term growth and value creation in China's livestock sector.
