VITAMIN

01

The vitamin market remained firm last week. VA and VE producers raised contract prices; niacin supply stayed tight with limited spot availability, while niacinamide prices continued to rise. Some K3 producers have delivery schedules extending into Q3, supporting gradual price increases.

AMINO ACID

02

The amino acid market remained stable to firm last week, with producers actively raising prices and maintaining tight deliveries. Lysine prices were steady at USD 1200–1230/MT for 98.5% and USD 660–690/MT for 70%. Threonine continued to rise with active transactions at USD 1350–1400/MT, while methionine remained under bundled sales and limited supply, with prices fluctuating.

API

03

The veterinary API market remained generally stable last week. Supply constraints persisted for some products, supporting firm pricing, while demand stayed relatively soft and cautious. Doxycycline prices increased amid tight supply; enrofloxacin and ciprofloxacin HCl saw some producers suspend quotations due to raw material pressure; florfenicol supply remained tight; and amoxicillin stayed firm on cost support. Further developments will depend on raw material costs and supply-demand changes.

FOOD ADDITIVE

04

In sweeteners, sucralose prices increased to around USD 12.62–12.88/kg, with further upside potential, while sodium saccharin continued to rise. In nutritional additives, creatine monohydrate prices remain bullish, with transactions at USD 3.25–3.64/kg and delivery schedules extending to late April.
